Education, Teacher Training and Research in Spain:
A Music Educators' view

Thursday, November 9, 2006 12pm-1:30pm, Rm 242 Education

Dr. Gabriel Rusinek

Associate Professor
College of Education
University Complutense
Madrid, Spain

Elementary, secondary and higher education in Spain are subject to continuous curricular reforms which are driven more by political interests than by research based policies. This creates confusion and contradictions for students, educators and administrators. Dr. Rusinek will speak on the following issues;

‡ Current Challenges including student retention, teacher training, and the transformation of the university system in compliance with the Bologna Declaration passed in 1999 by the European Ministers of Education

‡ Creativity research

‡ Teaching and learning of music in schools
